Agenda item #12.

➤ 2020 MEETING SCHEDULE:

I believe it will be some time before we can meet in person. Below is the proposed 2021 meeting schedule and information to be distributed.

➤ Baileys Harbor Room Tax Proposal:

Some municipalities are inquiring what is going on with the proposal to raise room tax. Some permit holders feel that the Tourism Zone should be sending out communication about the proposed increase in room tax rate. I have drafted a memo for both the municipalities and permit holders. These are just a draft and can be adjusted as needed. You will find the memo's with the items for agenda item #8.

➤ Legislative 2021:

Rep. Kitchens noted during the November Executive Committee Meeting that the legislation he is sponsoring will have a uniform report and due dates for Lodging Marketplace Providers "MP" to remit reporting and payment. The significance of this proposed legislation should it go through will be that we may have to amend ordinances for a standard due date for MP providers, as we will not receive payments monthly if the language is similar to what was proposed last cycle. This will impact municipal budgets and DDC budget as well.

➤ Exemption Review:

In light of reviewing and working on 2020 Exemptions with the Admin. Asst., we would like to propose thresholds for reviewing exemption amounts. I believe we should review all exemptions claims of $500 in a single report month and/or $500 for a quarter. Review of exemptions is not completed each month and going forward it more than likely will be a quarterly review. If this threshold is acceptable, I will add it to the policy and procedure.

➤ Bi-Annual Reports:

Permitted Reporting: As of 12/2/2020 there are 1265 permits. Since 5/20/2020 (date of the last report), 72 new permits were issued.

- Of note, a review of the historical number of permits shows that with the 12/2/2020 report, the number of permits has dropped from 1273 in May 2020 to 1265, it is the first decrease in permits since 2018. The only other year there was a decrease in permits was 2011.
- Please note that one (1) large property sold that had one (1) and has turned into six (6) new permits with more pending.
- A column for emergency contacts has been added to the report. I will continue to work to obtain current emergency contact numbers from permit holders.

By Unit Reporting: As of 12/2/2020 the breakdown on the By Unit report shows a current view of the breakdown of permits and units by municipality.

- Further, there is a breakdown of percentages to the total for Permits and Units by property type.
- Of note, as of the date of the report 922 properties utilize an online listing of some sort which is 72.9% of all permits.
- Of the 1265 permits, 347 are agent-managed.

Remove Property Report: As of 12/1-2020, for the period 5/20/2020 through 12/1/2020, 82 permits were deactivated.

- 45 properties sold.
- 7 closed their permits due to COVID.
- 18 reported that they are no longer renting.
- 4 combined two permits into one permit
- 1 reduced the units on the permit.
- 2 closed their permit because they now use their home as a primary residence.
- 3 changed their minds about renting.
- 2 are now long term rentals.

➤ Airbnb:

- Airbnb has now gone public and has begun to make changes to their Professional Host fee structure abroad. I have included an article from Reuters. Currently, it looks like these changes are for outside North America; they plan to increase host fees and remove the fee charged to the traveler. While increased fees to hosts is not favorable, it could make things easier on hosts if implemented stateside. It could potentially make things easier for reporting with removing the issues surrounding the transparency of the Traveler Service Fees when trying to calculate lodging sales between the Gross Earnings vs. Occupancy Tax Column when working with the Airbnb Gross Earnings Report. Currently, the taxable traveler service fees are left out of the Gross Earnings column creating confusion when permit holder reviews the amount of tax collected by Airbnb compared to the sales posted by Airbnb in the Gross Earnings Column. See the example below:

Gross Earnings	Occupancy Taxes
1225	153.77
1225	153.77
	207.12
487.5	153.77
1300	163.19
1225	153.77

$1,225 * 11% is not $153.77

To get the correct sales> $$153.77 * 100 / 11 = $1,397.91$

$$1,397.91 * 11\% = \153.77 (now a balanced transaction)

The amount of the Traveler service fee is $(1397.91 - 1225 = $172.94)$ This is the amount left out of the Gross Earnings column (Airbnb says this amount is confidential)

Hosts must make this correction in order to balance their sales to the room tax remitted on their behalf.

Airbnb streamlines fees as it tilts toward biggest hosts

By Jane Lanhee Lee, Krystal Hu

4 MIN READ

(Reuters) - Airbnb is requiring most professional hosts outside North America to include all service fees in the rate presented to guests, a move that mirrors how rival platforms operate.

Airbnb plans to raise price range for
IPO - source

01:11

Airbnb will require hosts who use third-party software to manage bookings to eliminate the “service fee” paid by guests that is traditionally tacked on to the listing price. Instead hosts will pay a standard fee of 15%, up from the typical 3% they are assessed now.

Hosts interviewed by Reuters said they expect most will raise their listed prices to account for the larger host fee, making the change cost-neutral for most guests and for Airbnb. But hosts with fewer properties expressed some concerns.

The new fee structure comes as the San Francisco-based home rental platform prepares to sell shares in its initial public offering this week. Airbnb said early tests show the simplified pricing helped drive 17% more bookings.

“Following feedback from hosts we recently introduced a simplified host-only fee structure for professional hosts who connect to our API in certain countries,” said Airbnb spokesperson Christopher Nulty. “Our fee structure for individual hosts remains unchanged.”

But Airbnb declined to comment on some of the negative feedback from hosts about the change, citing a quiet period before its IPO.

The fee change has been communicated to professional hosts but not reported widely.

Airbnb began with hosts renting out air mattresses in their homes. A former Airbnb host acquisition specialist told Reuters “individual hosts are good for PR.” But hosts managing hundreds or thousands of properties drive an outsized portion of revenue. As of end-September, 10 percent of Airbnb’s hosts were professional managers, and they accounted for 28 percent of nights booked, according to Airbnb’s IPO filings.

Management software platform Uplisting’s CEO Vincent Breslin said hotels and professional managers of multiple properties have asked for the change to make it easier to list across different platforms with one sticker price.

“Having fee parity across all platforms is a benefit to all,” said Ryan Danz, CEO of Air Concierge Inc., which manages about 500 properties. “It makes a better apples-to-apples comparison for the traveler if they find the same home listed on various websites.”

But some smaller property managers are worried the change could hurt them if they can’t raise prices enough to cover the increased host fee.

Airbnb already gave itself a black eye with many hosts when it made them issue refunds for cancellations caused by the global pandemic. It now faces a class action suit and hundreds of arbitration cases stemming from that.

Johnny Buckingham, who manages nine listings on Airbnb across the U.S., said he would not want to raise his listing price to cover the increased host fee and believed Airbnb was discouraging hosts from using software to cross-list on other platforms.

“They’ve made their message clear. Stick exclusively with us or pay us 5x as much,” he said.

Sarah DuPre, sales director at AirDNA, an analytics firm specializing in vacation rentals, said that the will have a minimal impact on host retention but could impact Airbnb’s “ability to be seen as the most economical source of accommodation.”

Rowan Clifford, who helps Airbnb hosts improve visibility of their listings and is also a host, predicted in a blog post two years ago that host fees would go up as hosts become reliant on Airbnb. He expects individual hosts will eventually also see a fee hike and said smaller hosts could face price competition from professionally managed listings that don’t raise prices to cover the increased host fee. “They don’t need us as much anymore, basically.”
